

Original Paper | Published: 29 June 2021

Long-term climatic water availability trends and variability across the African continent

Charles Onyutha

Theoretical and Applied Climatology 146, 1–17 (2021) | Cite this article

256 Accesses | 3 Citations | Metrics

 A Correction to this article was published on 04 August 2021

 This article has been updated

Abstract

This study analyzed trends and variability in climatic water availability (CWA) across the African continent using monthly precipitation and potential evapotranspiration (PET) over the period 1901–2015. Climatic water availability was characterized in terms of precipitation

Access options

Buy article PDF

34,95 €

Price includes VAT (Uganda)
Tax calculation will be finalised during checkout.

Instant access to the full article PDF.

Rent this article via DeepDyve.

Learn more about Institutional subscriptions

Activate Windows

Go to Settings to activate Windows.

Sections

Figures

References